PROCLAMATION

To the Cayugas who are scattered abroad.

ANY moons have passed since the Cayugas have assembled at the Long House for deliberation and smoking the pipe of peace. The tribes of the Bears, Beavers, Turtles, Deer, Herons, Snipe and Hawks abandoned their ancient hunting grounds a century ago and moved away to the west. No one of them is left to mourn for Logan. In their place you, the New Cayugas, have thriven on the happy hunting grounds, but many have also moved away to other fields.

A century ago a new name was found for Hardenbergh's Corners, which had before been called Wasco, and the name of Auburn was taken from Goldsmith's Deserted Village in the county of Longford, Ireland, and so it has since been called.

Auburn from that time became the metropolis and county seat of the Cayugas' county, and here was built its court house and other public buildings. Its forest was cleared away, but the elms and maples of a second generation line its streets and furnish welcome shade. The game which freely roamed the forest, and the fish which leaped in Owaseco river have all gone. But the beautiful City of Auburn which took the place of the forest is still here, and proposes to open her Lone House for all old-time braves who are scattered abroad, during the week from June 24 to 29, 1906. Those who still live in Auburn are proud of the many who have gone forth to achieve success in various callings.

We ask you all back again for a season of reunion during the aforesaid Old Home Week, and as Chief Sachem I hereby proclaim the 24th to 29th of June, inclusive, as the days set apart for that purpose, and do cordially invite, entreat, bid, and command you to return and join with us in this celebration.

Then come, leave your tomahawks and scalping knives behind, but bring your pipes and wumpum with you, and you will find the latchstring out for Old Home Week and a generous welcome from the sachems and braves of Auburn.

"Auburn is not a deserted
Save for Owaseco's shore
To fish, or hunt, or swim or sail,
Or dream of Eensore."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have affixed my name at Auburn, on February 22, 1906.

E. CLARENCE AIKEN, Mayor.

LOGAN MONUMENT, FORT HILL CEMETERY

"WHO IS THERE TO MOURN FOR LOGAN?"

Logan, who was known among the Indians as Tuh-gah, was a distinguished Sachem of the Iroquois Confederacy and member of the Cayuga tribe, was born according to tradition at the Indian village of Wasco, now Auburn, in 1723.

THE INVITATION

THE SEWARD STATUE AND HOMESTEAD
SEWARD PARK

Co all persons that have ever resided within the domain of the County of Cayuga, and to their sons and daughters of all generations, greeting :

The Citizens of Auburn extend to you all a most hearty invitation to join with them in the spirit of glad reunion during the week set apart for that purpose, and designated as Old Home Week. It should be a joyful time for former residents again to visit the scenes of their earlier life, and it will be a great delight for those now residing in this city to extend to all a cordial welcome. It is to be hoped that former residents of Cayuga County may come from every part of the Union and from foreign shores to share in the festivities of the week.

A programme of interesting events has been provided for each day from Sunday, June 24, to Friday, June 29.

An invitation is extended to every interested person, and it is our desire that all may join in the effort to make the holiday a glorious event in the history of this noble city.

AUBURN OF TODAY

HON. CYRUS C. DENNIS
AUBURN'S FIRST MAYOR—1845

AUBURN has been the "old home" of three generations of sons, since its vicinity ceased to be the happy hunting ground of the Cayugas in the days of the great Iroquois confederacy. While it is a manufacturing town and one of the most thriving cities of the Empire State, and its site was chosen on the strength of the splendid water power of the Owasco River, Auburn is, withal, distinctly a city of homes, and, true to its poetic cognomen, "the loveliest village of the plain."

If for any cause the children of Auburn move away, they ever nurture the fond hope of some day returning to pass their declining years under the shadow of the "old home," or, at least, to be laid to rest in one of the beautiful cemeteries. The reason for this strong affection is found in the fact that here is combined in rare measure all the comforts and advantages of the city and the sweet beauty and healthfulness of the country life, on land and water, the strenuous life and the quiet retirement, the cheap living and the high thinking which form the ideals of all communities.

To sum up Auburn in business men's fashion let us note its principal assets, so far as the limited space allotted will permit.

Most important of all are its natural advantages. The city is delightfully located on an undulating town site over seven hundred feet above sea level, on both banks of the Owasco River, a short distance below the foot of Owasco Lake, a beautiful sheet of water over a mile wide and stretching eleven miles to the south, in the heart of the famous "lake country" of Central New York. The "plain," like the "village," is mere poetic license, since Auburn sits serenely fair upon her seven hills, like the Imperial City itself, for we familiarly say "East Hill," "West Hill," "Fort Hill," and the others, even "Capitol Hill."

A fertile agricultural region surrounds the city, and within its very borders are found inexhaustible supplies of limestone, the blue and the grey in patriotic union, and of gravel, sand and brick-clay, building materials on the spot. Owasco Lake is the City's reservoir, hundreds of feet deep and impounding the waters of two hundred square miles of watershed, from which a municipal water plant furnishes water for domestic and fire purposes through sixty-five miles of street mains under the Holly system.

Citizens have added to these natural advantages the dams at the waterfalls—some nine within the city limits, with a total descent of one hundred and fifty feet—and the manufacturing plants, which have made the wealth of the city, and the transportation lines, urban, suburban and interurban.

The local electric railway runs by two routes to the foot of Owasco Lake, where beautiful Lakeside Park, a high-class resort maintained by the railway company, Island Park with its new summer theatre, the Owasco Country Club and other attractions draw thousands daily in the season.

The Auburn Division of the New York Central Lines, in connection with its new Passenger Station and Freight Houses, affords excellent facilities for transportation east and west, putting the city in close touch with Syracuse, Albany and New York, and with the foot of Cayuga, Seneca and Canandaigua Lakes, and their first-class steamboat lines, and with Rochester and the west.

HON. E. CLARENCE AIKEN
AUBURN'S PRESENT MAYOR.—ELECTED 1905

The Lehigh Valley Railroad, which also has new Passenger and Freight Stations, besides connecting directly with the coal fields of Pennsylvania, gives an outlet to Fair Haven on Lake Ontario, and by one route along the west shore of Owaseo Lake reaches its numerous cottage sites, and by another route for forty miles along the east shore of Cayuga Lake brings the city into communication with the resorts of that lake and with Wells College, Cornell University and Ithaca, and affords an alternative route to New York.

The Auburn & Syracuse Electric Railway furnishes a half-hour high-grade service to Skaneateles Lake and Syracuse over a scenic route. The Auburn & Northern Electric Railway is building a line seven miles to Port Byron, connecting with the great trunk lines across the state. The New York, Auburn & Lansing Railroad is building a line from Auburn to Ithaca, and other electric roads are projected to the south and to the west.

Two telephone companies, the Bell and the Automatic, local and long distance, the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies, and the American, United States and Interurban Electric Express companies complete the facilities for intercommunication.

The City has experienced its civic awakening, and with a reformed charter and all the dignities of the larger cities it is rapidly becoming cosmopolitan. With a population approaching 40,000, it takes pride in several miles of smooth pavements and many miles of macadamized streets, in electrical subways throughout the

ST. PETER'S, PRIOR TO 1868

The first Episcopal Church was erected in 1811. The Sunday School of St. Peter's Church was opened in 1821 by Dr. Burt and Wm. Bostwick. The church was consumed by fire in 1832. Rebuilt and dedicated in August, 1833. This second structure torn down in 1868 and the present edifice first occupied in 1870.

The Presbyterian Society received as a donation from Col. Hardenbergh, May 31, 1814, the lot now occupied by the First Church, corner of North and Franklin Streets. First Church dedicated March 12, 1817. Cost $17,000.

It was moved away to East Hill and is now known as Calvary Church. The present magnificent stone edifice, occupying the former site, was erected in the early 70's. Rev. William H. Hubbard, D. D., present pastor.

Now Henry Traub & Son furniture house. Present edifice erected in 1883. Rev. A W. Bourne, present pastor of First Baptist Church.

HOLY FAMILY ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH

The first religious society of Roman Catholics in Auburn was organized August 3, 1820. Called Fourth Roman Catholic Church of the Western District of New York. Rev. Thomas O'Flaherty, first permanent rector, 1845-1856. He was succeeded by Rev. M. Kavanaugh, Rev. Michael Creedon and Rev. Jas. McGlew. Rev. Thomas O'Flaherty returned in May, 1864. Present Church of Holy Family erected in 1860. Rev. J. J. Hickey, present rector.

The Methodists organized April 28, 1819. Erected a Chapel in Chapel Street in 1821. Sold to Roman Catholics. In 1832 John Seymour and Tallmadge Cherry built a stone church on south corner of Water and North Streets at their own expense. Sold two years later to the Methodist society. This building was destroyed by fire in April, 1867.

To the efforts of Rev. William Searls is largely due the erection of the First Methodist Church on Exchange Street, dedicated in January, 1869. The handsome new Trinity Church now being erected on a corner of Genesee and Evans Streets indicates the growth of this denomination. Rev. Charles E. Skinner is present pastor of Trinity Church.

business center and spreading into the residence quarters, many fine business blocks, fifteen public schools with handsome brick buildings, more than twenty beautiful stone and brick churches, Music Hall, the Burtis Opera House and the grand Burtis Auditorium, seating nearly five thousand, at which the best musical and theatrical attractions are presented. The United States Court House and Post Office, the State Prisons and the State Armory, quarters of the Wheeler Rifles, 2d Separate Co. N. G. N. Y., the County Court House, the City Hall and the Public Library are a most creditable line of public buildings, while the two hospitals, two orphan asylums, the Home, etc., are most beneficent charitable institutions. The grounds, buildings and equipment of the Auburn Theological Seminary are of the highest order, and the new buildings of the City Club and of the Woman's Educational and Industrial Union are unsurpassed in their classes.

The residence portion of the city consists of detached houses and spacious grounds very largely open to the streets and neighboring yards without fences, producing with the wide streets the effect of a great park. The streets are bordered with grass plots and lined with beautiful trees. Then there is Seward Park, the Y. M. C. A. Field and Park, floral circles, etc., for the further pleasure and adornment of the city, besides several beautiful cemeteries, of which Fort Hill, in the southwest part of the city, is pre-eminent, occupying the site of a pre-historic Indian fortification and adjacent lands.

The financial interests of the community are cared for by two National Banks, two Private Banks, two Savings Banks, and a new Trust Company.

The Auburn Light, Heat and Power Company furnishes electric light and electric power and steam heat to individuals and corporations and lights all the streets and municipal buildings with electricity under a city contract, and the Citizens Light and Power Company provides competition in electric light and power, while the Auburn Gas Company supplies illuminating and fuel gas to private consumers.

The Auburnian has every facility for keeping abreast of the times, for the Rochester and Syracuse morning papers are laid on his breakfast table, the New York dailies are here at noon, and the afternoon brings forth the two local dailies, the Advertiser and the Citizen, produced along the most advanced lines of the newspaper business. The Cayuga County Independent and the Auburn Journal are weekly and semi-weekly papers. The Seymour Library, in the Case Memorial building, contains over twenty thousand volumes for free circulation, and the Seminary Library as many more, not to mention in particular the resources offered by the Cayuga County Historical Society, the Seward Free Reading Room, the Young Men's Christian Association, the Woman's Educational and Industrial Union and a host of other organizations, social and fraternal.

But the backbone of the city is its manufacturing industries, three hundred and fifty in number, employing over seven thousand operatives. The names of many of the larger of these plants will be found elsewhere in this book in the classified list of manufacturers.
